3. Red Sandstone Garage Public Art Installation Review

Molly reviews the delivery and installation of the art by John Fleming. The board discusses conditions and repair expectations for artist: missing and chipped paint, clean the straight cut of edges where there are several paint drips, remaining blue tape on edges, clean top portions, remove strap mark, repair of text box. The paint should be clean and pristine. He will also have to paint over the later addition of text. The board will outline their expectations for these repairs prior to the return of the artist on June 14th. These repairs will need to be made by the artist for acceptance of the art prior to final payment. Kara and Bill will be present at the installation when the artist arrives. Molly explains how the installation was delivered and installed. The board reviews the process of selection for public art calls. Molly reviews the artist's suggestions for anti-graffiti coating. The board expresses concern about the application of the anti-graffiti coating and the proposal of artist for the work to rust naturally. The board decides to watch it over the summer and assess the condition. The board would like to mitigate and discourage any additional text or images to the installation.

7. Other Matters from the Board.

Margaret share's Looking Up by Thomas Freidman. It is her favorite work in Chicago! She reached out to the studio as it was on loan to the City of Chicago. It is a 36 foot tall work which has been exhibited in many cities around the country. She suggests it may be a fun fit for Vail.

Bill discusses the possibility of an art museum within the Civic Plan. He said they reviewed in the past having it along the south side of the Lionshead Parking structure. He believes it is something Vail is lacking and we should seriously explore this opportunity within the Civic Plan. Molly and Bill will meet to discuss how to best present this concept.

8. Meeting adjourned.
